FUKUOKA

In collaboration with
Tourist Information Centers in the area

FUKUOKA (福岡) lies on the northern coast of Kyushu, the southernmost of the four main islands of Japan. The city has a 2,000-year history and has prospered since ancient times as a gateway of Asia. With a population of over 1,579,000 (Oct. 2018) people, making it the 5th largest city in Japan, it is the administrative, economic and cultural center of Kyushu. Fukuoka is a modern city with many hotels and other facilities and also temples, shrines, and other places of cultural and historic interest are carefully preserved. Moreover, it is surrounded by a diverse natural environment boasting numerous mountains, hot springs, seas, and parks located nearby the downtown area. And while Fukuoka offers all the conveniences of a major city, its slower pace allows visitors to relax as well.

Fukuoka boasts exceptional accessibility with over 300 international flights per week to and from about 20 cities in Asia and beyond, plus of course numerous daily flights to and from airports in Tokyo, Osaka and all other major domestic destinations. Visitors arriving at Fukuoka Airport can reach the city center, Tenjin Station, in only 11 minutes by subway. JR Hakata Station, the principal railroad station in both Fukuoka and Kyushu as a whole, is served by the Shinkansen, with minimum traveling times from Tokyo about 5 hours. Fukuoka is conveniently located as a base for exploring Kyushu, either by Shinkansen / express train or highway bus which provide quick connections to such cities as Kumamoto, Kagoshima, Saga, Nagasaki, Beppu, Oita and Miyazaki.

During the Edo Period, the Naka River divided the present-day city of Fukuoka into the two areas: the castle town of “Fukuoka” on the western side and the merchants’ town of “Hakata” to the east. In 1889, the two towns were incorporated into the present Fukuoka City, but even today facets of old Hakata remain, with for example the preservation of traditional crafts such as Hakata Dolls and Hakata Textiles.

The people of Fukuoka love festivals, and there is a full calendar of events to match. The four most representative examples are Hakata Dontaku Festival (May 3–4), where citizens’ groups dressed in costumes parade through the streets of the city; Hakata Gion Yamakasa Festival (Jul. 1–15), the climax of which involves seven teams of several hundred men, each carrying one-ton floats over a five-kilometer course in a time trial; Hojoya Festival (Sep. 12–18), which has a 1,100-year history held in Hakozaki-gu Shrine; and Asian Month (Sep.), a month-long celebration of Asian culture. There are also numerous smaller festivals held in and around Fukuoka, all of which can add color to your trip.

Transportation in the City:

The easiest way to travel around Fukuoka is by subway – each station is identified by a number and a symbol related to a cultural topic around the area. Kuko Line runs from Fukuoka airport to Meinohama via Hakata, Nakasu-Kawabata, Tenjin and Ohorikoen (for Ohori Park). Hakozaki Line runs from Nakasu-Kawabata to Kaizuka via Hakozaki-Miyamae (for Hakozakigu Shrine). Nanakuma Line runs from Tenjin-minami to Hashimoto via Fukudai-mae.

Fukuoka is also served by an extensive network of bus routes which takes you to most points of interest within the city and beyond. Hakata Bus Terminal, one of the principal terminals both for local and intercity buses, is located next to JR Hakata Sta. Another one, Tenjin Expressway Bus Terminal, is located on the 3rd fl. of Nishitetsu-Tenjin Sta., the terminal of Nishitetsu Tenjin-Omuta Line trains bound for Dazaifu, Kurume and Yanagawa.

Places of Interest: [① – ⑱: Location on the City Map]

TENJIN AREA

① Tenjin (天神): [subway Tenjin Sta.] Bustling with energy, Tenjin is Fukuoka’s principal commercial center. Here there are a large number of shops and department stores (Iwataya, Daimaru and Mitsukoshi) jostling for space with offices and even ancient shrines. For shopping, also check out Tenjin Chikagai (天神地下街), an underground mall which runs past the subway station entrance. In the western part of Tenjin is Tenjin West Street (天神西通り), a must for fashion-conscious young people, while in the eastern part is ACROS Fukuoka (アクロス福岡), a center for information and culture, covered with a terraced garden which descends into the adjacent Tenjin Central Park (天神中央公園).

HAKATA & NAKASU AREA

③ Canal City Hakata : [10 min. walk from JR Hakata Sta.] This futuristic city-within-a-city is the first of its kind in Japan. Centered around a 180-meter canal, it hosts a variety of attractions including Canal City Theater, a 13-screen movie theater, a futuristic amusement theme park, hotels, hundreds of stores, restaurants and daily street entertainment.

Gion Sta.] After four years of study in China, a priest named Yosai returned to Japan and introduced Zen Buddhism, establishing Shofukuji Temple as Japan’s first Zen Buddhist temple. Yosai also introduced tea, and the first tea bushes in Japan were cultivated in the temple grounds.

⑨ Tochoji Temple (東長寺): [Short walk from subway Gion Sta.] While the structure is modern, the temple has been long established. Completed only in 1992, the biggest attraction for visitors is its image of Buddha, which at 10.8 meters (36 ft.) is Japan’s tallest such wooden image.

⑩ Hakata Riverain : [immediately above subway Nakasu-Kawabata Sta. Exit 6] A new commercial complex with a theater, a hotel, shops and restaurants. On the 7, 8th floor is the Fukuoka Asian Art Museum featuring a collection of contemporary Asian art. Hours: 10:00–20:00. Closed: Wed. (Thu. when Wed. falls on a national holiday) & Dec. 26–Jan. 1. Admission: ¥200. <http://faam.city.fukuoka.lg.jp/eng/home.html> On the 5th & 6th floor is Fukuoka Anpanman Museum. Hours: 10:00–18:00 (enter by 17:00). Admission: ¥1,500.

⑥ Hakata Machiya Folk Museum (博多町家ふるさと館): [5 min. walk from subway Gion Sta.] Located just in front of Kushida-jinja Shrine, the museum presents the life and times of the people of Hakata during the Meiji and Taisho Eras (1868–1926). Particularly popular are video presentations of the Yamakasa Festival and the small shop which sells a comprehensive range of local crafts. Hours: Hakata Machiya Folk Museum Exhibition hall 9:00–17:00 (May.–Oct.), 10:00–18:00 (Nov.–Apr.), hours of souvenir shop 10:00–18:00. Closed: Dec. 29–31. Admission: ¥200.

⑪ Bayside Place Hakata : [25 min. walk from subway Tenjin Sta. or 20 min. by bus from Hakata Sta.] This waterfront complex of shops and restaurants is one of Fukuoka’s most popular attractions. The interior features a large columnar aquarium, while the outside has broad wooden decks for strolling along the waterfront. This is also the departure point for Hakata Bay cruises and for ferries to nearby islands.

⑫ Hakata Traditional Craft and Design Museum (はかた伝統工芸館): [5 min. walk from subway Gion Sta. or Nakasu-Kawabata Sta.] Located next to the Kushida-jinja Shrine, this tow-storied wooden building is a home to Fukuoka’s various traditional arts and crafts such as “Hakata-Ori” (woven textile) and “Hakata Ningyo” (dolls). Various exhibitions, workshops, and lectures are held in the Gallery Room in the first floor. The second floor mainly focuses on “Hakata-Ori” and “Hakata Ningyo”, explaining their history and manufacturing methods. Hours: 10:00–18:00. Closed: Wed. & Dec. 29–31. Admission: Free.
